

Planned Giving & Bequests/Wills

Thanks for considering leaving a planned gift or bequest to Canadian Foodgrains Bank—we appreciate your thoughtfulness!

Planning now to create a legacy that is a reflection of your life is an amazing gift to others who are less fortunate and to your family to remember you and your kindness. Through your generosity, you will make a difference in the lives of people who don't have enough to eat.

We are grateful you have thought of us, and are considering leaving this gift. A donation of this kind will have a lasting impact for years to come.

A planned gift to the Foodgrains Bank can be:

- Cash
- Publicly traded securities such as stocks, bonds, mutual funds
- A will or bequest
- RRSP's, RIF's, and LIFs

The Foodgrains Bank also accepts gifts of farm land. This land can be used by a growing project (if volunteers are nearby), or rented to earn income for programs. It may also be sold to buy land closer to a place where volunteers are located to support a growing project. To make a gift of land, contact Julie Derksen, Supporter Relations Manager (contact information below).

Before finalizing any planned gift or bequest for the Foodgrains Bank, please consult a financial advisor, lawyer or your denominational stewardship office.

Thanks for considering Canadian Foodgrains Bank as a beneficiary of your planned gift or bequest! Your generosity will help many people who don't have enough to eat.

Note: Because Canadian Foodgrains Bank projects and locations change frequently in response to the needs and where our members work, planned gifts and bequests cannot be allocated to a specific project or country as we cannot be sure they will be operational at the time of the gift.
